

Nicole Brewin
Vice President of Government & Public Affairs
Railway Supply Institute

Nicole Brewin is the vice president of government and public affairs for the Railway Supply Institute. Nicole monitors legislative and regulatory matters pertaining to the rail supply industry with particular emphasis on hazardous materials by rail, high speed, intercity passenger and commuter rail, the Section 130 Highway-Rail Grade Crossing Safety Program, truck sizes and weights, manufacturing, tax and rail infrastructure investment. Nicole manages two of the association's high-profile committees; RSI's Committees on Government & Public Affairs and State Tax and provides regulatory assistance on the Equipment Leasing Committee and Committee on Tank Cars. In addition, she functions as the industry regulatory representative on the Federal Railroad Administration's Rail Safety Advisory Committee. Nicole represents RSI on several industry coalitions including OneRail and the Interested Parties for Hazardous Materials. Nicole also oversees RSI's grassroots program and is Treasurer of the RSI Political Action Committee.

Nicole represents RSI as a board member of Operation Lifesaver; the past Co-Chair of the Transportation Task Force in Women in Government Relations and as past Legislative Chair of the Women's Transportation Seminar.

Nicole is also a member of the Public Affairs Council and the American Society of Association Executives where she received her certificate in Association Management.

Prior to joining RSI, Nicole worked for U.S. Representative Peter J. Visclosky (D-IN) as his transportation Legislative Assistant handling such issues as rail safety, surface transportation, Amtrak and High-Speed rail.

Nicole graduated from Marymount University in Arlington, Virginia with a Bachelor of Art's degree in political science and history and resides in Burke, Virginia with her husband, two daughters, son and Rosie, the labrador retriever.
